

Allianz Trade World Program for financial institutions

Allianz Trade for Multinationals

Allianz Trade World Program is a non-systemic, non-competing and highly rated risk mitigation alternative for financial institutions. We provide protection against the risk of non-payment of the debtor in trade finance transactions, with a range of products to cover receivable finance, payable finance and trade receivables securitizations.

How our partners benefit

Protection

Our priority is predictive protection. In the case of debtor default, our insurance provides compensation, which is paid directly and in a timely manner.

Risk-weighted asset optimization

Bank regulation is evolving fast and is becoming more restrictive in terms of capital requirements. Our solutions can be structured to achieve unfunded credit risk mitigation under Basel Accords and other local regulations.

Information

At Allianz Trade, we hold exclusive and proprietary information on 40+ million companies worldwide and our established risk model has proven accurate through many economic cycles and headwinds.

We have collected data over the past 100 years, allowing us to continually identify, evaluate and forecast the event of loss and its subsequent consequences. Following the launch of Solvency II, expected loss and capital requirement models are prominent features in our day-to-day business. We are investing in data intelligence, advanced statistical tools, and state-of-the-art technologies to further enhance our models.

Financial institutions, faced with a rapidly evolving and increasing competitive advantage - amid wider global economic uncertainty - have online access to our unique grading model. Our grading model assists with the management of credit risks through the tracking of grade evolution across a portfolio. More than ever, we see an interest from financial institutions in exploring insurance as an alternative risk distribution strategy.
